

ABOUT ME

I was born and bred in Waterloo.

I have been a Waterloo Wolf since the age of 6!

If its not "black and gold", we don't cheer for it.... Toronto Blue Jays are the exception.

The three best things I've ever been called in life are "Coach", "Dad" and now "Papa"!!

Since I was three, I have lived and breathed the game of hockey in one capacity or another, whether it was skating on an ODR, playing officiating, coaching or directing from the boardroom, I've always just wanted to be part of the game.

At the age of 16 while still playing, I was offered an opportunity to assist a past coach at which point my passion for coaching ignited and to this day after 41 seasons I still carry this passion.

COACHING BIO

I've coached at just about every age from initiation to U18 and every level from local to AAA and into junior with two brief stints with the Wellesley Applejacks, skating practices in the late 90's and one season as an assistant coach in 2015/16.

I pride myself in building teams that play with class, sportsmanship, and intensity built with players that wish to grow their skill, talent, and ability.

My passion for coaching is not only building strong hockey players but more so building good people that understand commitment to community and appreciate the things that were great in their lives, applying what they've learned to their future as adults.

My commitment to families is that your child's wellbeing and development is at the center of what we do as a team and building confidence in every member or the team is at the top of our priority list. I believe in fairness to all players and that "team" is far more important than "me" or "I". My desire is that every one of the players leaving our dressing room after the last game of the season has a greater love for the game than they did when they entered the room at the beginning of the season.

In return I have asked only one thing of my former players and that was the following:

"In 10 or 20 years when you see me on the street, please step up and introduce yourself and your family!"

To this day I have many friends that were former players and I take a great deal of pride that the job we did as coaches was part of what made them who they are in the world today!
